VOICE FORMULA

Acknowledge · Insight · Next step.

Earthy, grounded, unmistakably Phuket.

A palette pulled from the island itself — morning sand, afternoon shade under a banyan tree, coconut husk, the ochre of a temple roof. Warm neutrals do the heavy lifting; olive and ochre accent with intention.

Lora carries warmth and a hint of editorial polish. Used for headlines, pull quotes, and moments that deserve emphasis. Italic is used freely — it softens and humanizes.

Figtree is neutral but friendly — human, not corporate. Used for body copy, UI labels, navigation, and data. All-caps with wide tracking for eyebrows and small labels.

INLINE SEARCH PATTERN

Three card patterns — each answers a different question.

We show properties differently depending on where the user is in their journey. Editorial for browsing. Lifestyle-match for the curated shortlist. Compact for comparison and longer lists.

A · Editorial

Browsing views, area pages. Generous imagery, minimal chrome.

Natural light. Lived-in. Never staged.

Imagery is our strongest argument that Phuket is a home, not a holiday. Show the details of a life — a coffee on the terrace, kids' shoes by the door, a ceiling fan in slow motion — as often as you show the architecture.

✓ DO

MORNING LIGHT · open villa, coffee on counter

✓ DO

LIFESTYLE · kids walking to school, shaded street

✓ DO

DETAIL · rattan, linen, textured materials

✓ DO

AGENT · working at a kitchen table, natural

Always

- ✓ Natural, warm daylight — golden hour when possible
- ✓ Lived-in details: books, mugs, worn textiles, real plants
- ✓ Human scale — people present or implied, not empty
- ✓ Subtle film grain or photographic softness, not over-sharpened

Never

- × Harsh midday sun, blown highlights, or heavy HDR
- × Empty, staged showhome interiors with no signs of life
- × Hyper-saturated tropical clichés — cocktails, infinity pools at sunset, postcard beaches
- × Stock photo smiling couples with sign "SOLD"

Phuket Living — a wordmark, a seal, and a tag

Phuket Living

THIS FEELS RIGHT

The wordmark pairs an italic serif "Phuket" with a roman "Living" — a small gesture that reads as warm and human rather than corporate. The tag "This feels right" sits quietly beneath, in widely-tracked uppercase.

CLEAR SPACE

Maintain clear space equal to the height of the "P" cap on all sides. Minimum size: 120px wide digital, 24mm print.
